KEY WILL LAUNCH DRIVE FOR VOTES AT RALLY TONIGHT

Meeting at English Avenue School To Hear Veteran Campaigner "Tell Whole Truth" About Municipal Affairs.

MURPHY CAMPAIGN OPENS WEDNESDAY

Candidate for Mayor's Post To Speak in 11th Ward; Heated 3-Way Contest Is Indicated.

Municipal politics, overshadowed for the last few weeks by heated state races, is slated to forge into the limelight tonight when Mayor James L. Key, veteran campaigner, opens his drive for renomination.

Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, of the eleventh ward and an entrant in the mayoralty campaign, will launch his drive Wednesday night.

Key's first official public utterance will take place at a meeting at 8 o'clock tonight at the English Avenue school, fifth ward, where politics always are taken seriously.

Murphy will train his heavy guns on the opposition at a meeting at the John B. Gordon school at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night. The Gordon school is in Murphy's home ward.

Key, LeCraw, third candidate for the nomination as mayor, began his bid for votes at a meeting held last Friday night.

And so the race will be well under way by the middle of the week, and is expected to continue a heated contest until the closing of ballot boxes on the night of September 28.

Key, a colorful campaigner and a veteran of many bitter controversies, tonight will point to his four-year record as the chief executive of Atlanta during the most trying time that Atlanta has experienced since it was sacked during the civil war. He will ask for support in order that economy policies of the administration in its efforts "to preserve the credit of the city" may be continued.

The mayor is expected to warn that a change now would mean that the credit of the city would be threatened. He will say that the city has experienced since it was sacked during the civil war. He will ask for support in order that economy policies of the administration in its efforts "to preserve the credit of the city" may be continued.

Will Tell "Whole Truth."
He will pursue his announced policy "to tell the people the whole truth about the government, in order that they may decide for themselves just how they want their business conducted."

Among other features of the campaign will be a review of the tax assessment reductions made possible through economies of the Key regime. He will show that assessments have been reduced more than $100,000,000 here during the depression, that government costs have been cut about $2,000,000 a year, and that the in-

A. F. OF L. STAKES PRESTIGE ON ISSUE OF NEW WALKOUT

8,500 Laborers in Test of Strength as Mellon Depends Upon Big Supply of Refined Metal.

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Aug. 12.—(UP)—Union workmen, losing $38,000 every day on strike, battled on a four-state front today to bring the billion-dollar Aluminum Company of America to its knees.

In New Kensington, East St. Louis, Ill.; Massena, N. Y., and Alcoa, Tenn., 8,500 striking men and women glared at meager bank accounts and wondered if the grocer at the corner would grant them credit.

The American Federation of Labor, stung by criticism from its rank and file in the steel industry, chose its best organized manufacturing field, the aluminum industry, to demonstrate its power. Friday night it issued a strike call, demanding union recognition, the check-off system whereby the company deducts union dues from pay checks of all employees, and what the company insists is a "closed shop."

One thought cheered the strikers today, the federation of labor cannot afford to lose its fight. Irreparable damage to union prestige would follow defeat in its strongest manufacturing front. The A. F. of L. was expected to pour thousands of dollars in strike benefits into workmen's pockets.

At most New Kensington district plants, employing 4,300 men and women, the company's pay roll is more than a half-million dollars a month. The company's pay roll at the four plants on strike is well over a million dollars a month.

No Violence.
A few pickets loitered about the gates of the striking plants, but they found little to do. The walkout was accomplished with a surprising lack of violence. The workmen either did not wish or did not dare to incur union wrath by trying to enter the plants. The union insists 90 per cent of the men employed in making virgin aluminum are members of the Aluminum Workers' Union.

AAA'S 1935 PLANS ON CROP CONTROL SHARPLY REVISED

Careful Check on Nation's Food Supply Provides Basis for Next Year's Acreage Program

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Planning war-time vigilance over the nation's food and feed supplies next fall and winter, the farm administration also is preparing drastic revisions of its 1935 crop control programs.

Official government estimates are for the lowest crop production in more than 30 years because of continued drought. Therefore, the AAA has undertaken a day-to-day watch over conditions and is starting an inventory of the food and feed supply which will form the basis for guiding its work during the coming year.

Next year's wheat plan is likely to call for the same acreage planted during the years 1927-32, rather than a 15 per cent reduction from that figure. Necessity for this move grew from the prospective cut in the carry-over from this year's excessive figure of 270,000,000 bushels to about the normal of 125,000,000 bushels.

Cotton Increase.
Cotton production, limited this year to 25,000,000 acres under the voluntary control plan and to 10,460,251 bales under the Bankhead act, probably will be extended in 1935 to allow production on 32,000,000 to 35,000,000 acres. This year's large carry-over of 13,000,000 bales is expected to be cut to about the normal level of 5,000,000 next year as a result of the prospective short 1934 crop of 9,195,000.

The program for corn and hogs is still to be considered. Final decision will hinge largely on the report of the feed and forage situation showing supplies available in comparison with the livestock population it must support.

To Maintain Ratio.
Over a period of years, according to Secretary Wallace, the number of hogs tends to balance with the supply of corn. The administration will seek to maintain this ratio.

The 1935 tobacco program awaits drafting after 1934 sales, which will show how far the former excessive surplus has been reduced. Indicated production this year is 1,043,000,000 pounds, about 200,000,000 pounds less.

HOWELL GREETED BY ROME OFFICIAL

Mussolini Representative
Extends Welcome to Atlantic and Party.

ROME, Aug. 12.—(AP)—An official welcome on behalf of Premier Mussolini and the Italian air service was extended today to Clark Howell, who arrived from Naples on an aviation mission entrusted to him by President Roosevelt.

General Aldo Pellegrini, second in command of General Italo Balbo's fleet, welcomed the extended the greetings on behalf of Il Duce and Giuseppe Valle, chief of the general staff for aviation.

"It was a year ago today," General Pellegrini recalled, "when Marshal Balbo's squadron returned from America, where the kindness, courtesy and enthusiasm of the American people was engraved on the hearts of all our officers."

General Pellegrini told Howell that all possible courtesies of the Italian air force would be extended to him in his various settings of local and social grades more faithfully and comprehensively than any other play-wright of his time. Others objected to what they called surface treatment.

The National Institute of Arts and Letters conferred on him a gold medal. He was a chevalier of the Legion of Honor and held degrees from Williams, Columbia and Missouri.

Besides his wife and son, a daughter, Mrs. William Elliott Jr., the former Glory Thomas, survives him.

Amazing Financial Comeback Staged by City Governments

Municipalities That Were on Verge of Bankruptcy Two Years Ago Now Are Making Entries in Black Ink.

By CHARLES B. SAPP.
(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)
CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Financial figures in books of the nation's municipalities were being written in black ink once more.

From all sections of the country today came reports of the brightest outlook for city monetary affairs in the last few years, a far cry from the desperate depression situation of 1931-1932.

Lending impetus to the new state of affairs were generally lowered interest rates on both renewed and new bond issues, with some even selling at premiums, an almost undreamed-of thing not so long ago; lowered, outstanding debt; and, in numerous cases, reduction of salary cuts.

Adm back of the intensive struggle to effect the transfer on the municipal books from red ink to black stand in bold relief balanced budgets, strict economies rigidly enforced, and, more recently, increased tax collections.

Chicago, only last week, gave a notable example of the way financial matters were "looking up" for the country's municipalities. The city's school teachers demonstrated and paraded week in and week out. They were months behind in salary, tax collections having been delayed due to reassessments. Legislation needed to obtain loans was passed and the city's tangled financial affairs were straightened out.

Monday the Reconstruction Finance Corporation agreed to loan the Chicago board of education $22,500,000 to pay up the school teachers' back salaries.

Said Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC: "While the bonds which the RFC will issue for the city have heretofore been authorized by the school board and city officials at 5 per cent interest, I find the finances of the city of Chicago and the Chicago board of education to be in such improved condition as to warrant a lower interest rate, and accordingly we are authorizing this loan at 4 1/2 per cent."

Kansas City, said City Manager H. F. McElroy, was in much better financial shape at present than in 1931. There are no unpaid salaries, no unpaid city bills and city employees are working full time. A bond issue of $675,000 as of August 1 sold for

33 HOME REPAIRING DRIVE TO BEGIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—(UP)—Eighteen thousand banks throughout the country will open their doors tomorrow for the first depression-bid customer under Uncle Sam's new "hundred dollar home modernization program."

Thus will start a project that is expected to give more than 2,000,000 homes a new look and a new lease on life. The program was conceived by President Roosevelt for the benefit of the home-owner who, because of the depression, was forced to let his home fall into disrepair.

From tomorrow on he cannot plead poverty as the reason for, with proof that he is a substantial citizen, though broke, the home owner can step up to a bank cashier, make known requirements and leave with a modernization check.

The government will guarantee 20 per cent of the total loans made by the banks and the banker will gamble on the integrity of the borrower in repaying the full principal.

Federal Housing Administrator James A. Moffett expects hundreds of thousands of houses to be restored under the plan. He enlisted co-operation of the nation's banks two weeks ago and today through the national emergency council announced appointment of regional directors and field representatives who will aid the home owner with applications and other necessary detail.

The program was divided into 10 regions as follows: 1. New York; 2. Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont; 3. Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and Pennsylvania; 4. Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia; 5. Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee; 6. Ohio, Michigan and West Virginia; 7. Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and Wisconsin; 8. Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Wyoming; 9. Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota; 10. ## NAZIS SPEED DRIVE FOR HEAVY BALLOT IN 'YES' PLEBISCITE

All Propaganda Facilities Pressed Into Service as Hitler "Steam Roller" Swings Into Motion.

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The high-powered Nazi propaganda machinery was thrown into gear today to assure an unprecedented production of "Jas" in next Sunday's post facto plebiscite on Adolf Hitler's election of himself as president of the Reich.

The regimented German newspapers, billboards, the radio, cinemas and cabinet ministers are being pressed into service to steam roller public opinion.

Government leaders will start their whirlwind stumping campaign tomorrow. Their efforts will reach a stirring climax Friday when Der Fuehrer himself will make an address here.

Nothing New.
The topics to be discussed by officials are expected to entail no major surprises. It is believed they will repeat assertions so often dinned into the public's ears. It is thought they will praise Hitler's decisiveness in grasping the torch of leadership from President Paul von Hindenburg's hand even before he died, the chancellor's abstinence from always working for the people, the wisdom that recently made possible a reduction in unemployment and his kindness as exemplified by his grant of amnesty to many political prisoners last week.

Wherever they look Germans will be reminded that it is their duty not only to vote, but more important, to vote affirmatively on the question submitted, thus equipping the Hitler administration with the instrument of popular support not only in the matter of joining the president's and chancellor's policies, but for a series of subsequent moves in which the Nazis are expected to cope with problems of finance, religion and foreign relations.

Speeches Today.
Tomorrow Dr. Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister, who co-ordinated the agencies which are whipping up public interest, will speak here. Hermann Wilhelm Goerring, premier of Prussia, will speak at Munich; Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, at Cologne; and Rudolf Hess, minister without portfolio, at Bremen. All the addresses will be broadcast.

Registration of new voters was started yesterday and was continued today.

The ballot which the German voter

BOMBINGS MARK 1ST ANNIVERSARY OF CUBAN REVOLT

Communications Strike Also Harasses Nation Still Turbulent Year After Ousting Machado.

HAVANA, Aug. 12.—(UP)—A series of bombings and a general communications strike marked the first anniversary today of the end of the Machado regime in Cuba.

Residents in Guanabacoa, outside Havana, were panic-stricken when three bombs exploded there during the morning.

Simultaneously, the electric power was cut off. The power plant workers walked out in sympathy with the communications strike.

Soldiers guarding the power plant, believing they were about to be attacked, fired their rifles into the air. The burst of firing caused growing excitement. No casualties were reported. The communications strike tied up the capital, but the workers in the main were orderly. Police patrols maintained order in public parks and along the broad avenues.

President Carlos Menéndez, although seeking early settlement of the trouble, refused to receive a strikers' committee.

Authorities expected trouble on the anniversary of Machado's passing today, but heavy patrols were placed about the city.

The strikers in the postoffice and telegraph offices are demanding back pay for the discharge of executives who formerly worked under Machado. They demanded action by 6 p. m. last night and refused the government's counter-proposal that they return to work and give their services 48 hours to consider their request.

Communist agitators were reported taking advantage of unrest and the Machado anniversary to force violence.

'Chute Saves Aviator As Bird Dives Plane

HAVANA, Aug. 12.—(UP)—An American instructor of Cuban army pilots battled with a buzzard over Havana today and saved his life by "bailing out" with a parachute.

The American-built fighting plane crashed in the sea. The buzzard, plucked to pieces by the propeller, plunged in a welter of feathers.

The flyer, Leonard James, was picked up by a hydroplane piloted by Ramon Santa Maria.

PARTY CONQUERS MANY OBSTACLES IN 123-MILE TRIP

Physician Reports Rear-Admiral 'Very Weak' and Thin But Says He Will Improve Speedily With Proper Care.

FIVE-MONTHS' VIGIL AT BASE IS ENDED

Byrd Relates Hardships and Says He Recorded Weather as Cold as 80 Below Zero.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Aug. 11.—(Delayed)—(AP)—(Via MacKay Radio).—A three-man tractor party, after two unsuccessful attempts today reached the advance weather base across the Ross sea ice barrier and found Admiral Richard E. Byrd waiting for them.

Thin and weak and with long shaggy hair after nearly five months of isolated existence, Admiral Byrd mounted the hatch of his shack and in snowdrifts to greet the men from Little America.

"Hello, fellows," he said. "Come on down and get warm. I have some hot soup for you."

For three days Dr. Richard C. Poulter and two other members of the expedition had struggled across the dark immensity of the ice barrier in a tractor hauling three sledges. Two previous attempts to reach Admiral Byrd were halted, one by storms which covered up the trail and another by mechanical difficulties.

It is 123 miles by trail to Bolling Advance weather base, where on March 29 Admiral Byrd saved a human face for the last time. The route taken by Dr. Poulter to find the location again was believed to have been even longer.

The light on the 12-foot anemometer pole which Admiral Byrd had hung and kept burning for days as a beacon to the tractor party was still burning.

Shows Signs of Weariness.
Admiral Byrd had several days' growth of beard on his face and showed signs of weariness and physical depletion, but Dr. Poulter reported by radio that the admiral was calm, "even calmer than we were."

The high-pitched whine of the radio carried news of the party's arrival to Little America this morning. It was like a bright shaft of light to this expedition which had begun to fear that Byrd might be in distress although reluctant to admit it.

Dr. Poulter was the first to report. He said Admiral Byrd was "quite weak." Later Byrd himself took a key away from Amory H. Waite Jr., the tractor party's radio operator.

"Tell my friends not to worry," said the admiral. "I'm all right. I've already come up a great way. You fellows have done a splendid job and I want to thank you."

Dr. Poulter, Ward and Demas, who drove the tractor, for nearly 70 hours had been coaxing, wheeling and urging the stange vehicle into the darkness of the south. They were close to exhaustion.

Judging from the few terse messages reaching Little America, Byrd's weakness apparently grew out of a number of causes. Back in June he apparently was rendered quite ill by fumes from his kerosene stove.

This left him weak. Apparently he was not able to give proper attention to cooking his food and to selecting his diet.

Moreover, still apprehensive of the danger of fumes, he ran the stove as little as possible and the cold tended to weaken him further.

80 Degrees Below Zero.
He said that he had recorded temperatures as low as 80 degrees below zero, the record for this continent.

Dr. Poulter said there were no signs

VALDOSTA, Aug. 12.—The Byrd Wisenbaker party, returning from church services at Dasher station, below Valdosta at noon today, in an automobile collided with another at the intersection of the highway and all five occupants were injured.

Wisenbaker, his wife, two children and a Miss Beck were in the car and were seriously injured. Miss Beck was reported to be most seriously injured though she may recover. Wisenbaker himself escaped with only a few cuts. All were hurried to Valdosta hospital where they are under treatment.

None of those in other car were injured though both automobiles were badly damaged.

Lightning and Winds Spread Forest Fires

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 12.—(AP) "Sky trouble" bothered foresters of the Pacific northwest today as lightning fired two valuable stands of timber in the Selway National forest on the Idaho-Montana line and wind spread the flames along a wide front.

Four thousand acres of timberland had been burned over in the latest outbreak of fire as forest officials rushed a thousand CCC workers by plane and truck into the trouble zone.

Even as the government marshaled its forces the wind whipped burning brands through the air for miles around to start new fires in a dozen places, while hundreds of additional fighters kept close watch over rest- less but corralled flames on a score of other fronts from California to Canada.

All others seeking city posts have been invited to appear at the Key rally tonight.

7 Killed, 31 Injured In French Train Wreck

AVIGNON, France, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Seven persons were killed and 31 injured in a train wreck at Avignon station early today in which the speeding Genera-Vintimille express jumped the rails and toppled over a case of two freight trains.

Most of the victims were passengers in a wooden car, which was smashed. There were no Americans among them.

The engine and 12 cars of the express were derailed and lurched over against a freight train on a parallel track. The freight cars in turn were knocked into the cars of a freight train on another track.

The crash severed power wires and the station was thrown into darkness, impeding rescue work.

Officials attributed the derailment to the speed with which the express passed a switch. The engineer blamed faulty brakes.

Four cars of the express tumbled over, and two were splintered.

Sims' official acts in the last senate.

He wrote the senator a letter after Sims had asked Millican to set the "time, place and the number of joint debates" in order that the people could judge each of the candidates before the September 12 state primary, at which time a senator will be nominated.

"If you or your campaign manager, Charles M. Ford, dispute the facts in my statements you had better hold your debate with the secretary of the senate or the state printer."

"As to your part in the death of House Bill No. 5 cutting the outrageous interest rate on small loans from 3-1/2 to 1-1/2 per cent per month, you can find the same on page 498 of the senate journal."

"As to your refusal to support the bill making Fulton county a separate senatorial district, the records of the senate, page 275, show you allowed it to be pigeon-holed for six weeks, refusing to bring it to the senate floor, although endorsed by hundreds of citizens, civic organizations and editorially endorsed by all three Atlanta papers."

"As to your failure to oppose the infamous double mileage bill whereby the general assembly paid themselves out of the pockets of the taxpayers twice for traveling expenses and your running out when the vote was taken, see page 1443 of the senate journal."

"As to my statement that while you were mayor the assessments on real estate were increased by the outrageous sum of $75,000,000, see page 80 of the city comptroller's report of 1932."

"As to my further statement that while I was fighting for clean government in city council, you were in the courts defending the grafters, see the records of Fulton superior court."

"During the last legislature you not only refused to co-operate with other members but because one little bill of yours failed in the house you issued a public statement in the papers of February 28, 1933, in which you would kill all local legislation during the session."

"Since your meeting on Friday night, gotten up by your campaign manager, Charles M. Ford, was attended by 79 persons, while mine on the same night in the same neighborhood was attended by nearly 300 people, it is evident that you were too busy to debate with me is merely a feeble effort to get up a crowd which you yourself cannot attract."

of scurvy, the scourge of the arctic and antarctic, but that the admiral was this.

"I am sure the admiral will recuperate quickly," he said. "We are relieving him of his many duties."

Dr. Poulter said in the face of mechanical difficulties the party steadily nursed the tractor southward throughout each traveling day. They had been under way since 8 a. m. Friday.

Benefited only slightly by the gray light of the forenoon, they steadily held on through ensuing darkness and over as it plunged into the swirling mists of the Valley of Crevasse. In spite of furs and face protectors they were freezing their hands and faces every few minutes.

The tractor's generators had failed. The brushes were worn down. They had to be held in place with small blocks. The ignition was troublesome.

Beacons had to be constructed of snow blocks and light beamed on top of them to keep check on their course. A vigilant watch was kept upon the line of nearly buried flags marking the original trail to Bolling base laid last spring.

Before starting out Dr. Poulter had intended to proceed by direct navigation in case the trail was obliterated.

At 3:45 p. m. yesterday the tractor reported they were 81 miles south of Little America, making camp briefly to repair the generator and snatch a bite to eat.

They said they would shove off again at 7:45 p. m.

They missed the schedule for calling Little America on the radio. They were from here but no response came back.

At 8 o'clock, a progress report was broadcast from Little America over radio telephone to Admiral Byrd.

"They are at 81," Little America reported. "If nothing stops them, if they can keep up their present rate of progress, they may be there by midnight. Keep the light burning."

The expedition at Little America feared that in the darkness the tractor party might pass by the fragile upper works of Admiral Byrd's buried shack without seeing it. There was apprehension, too, that mechanical difficulties might have stopped the tractor. Preparations were made here to put another tractor in the field at once should necessity arise.

William C. Haines, third in command of the expedition, ordered the engine of the tractor No. 1 kept running, and Captain Innes Taylor, in charge of trail operations, made a last check of its mechanism.

The next radio contact with the tractor party was to him at 11:45. It had been reported to Admiral Byrd that another broadcast would be sent out at midnight. At 11:45 p. m. the party was called but no reply came back.

Over the air came the hustle and bustle of traffic in the United States and elsewhere but nothing from the tractor party. The minutes dragged and members of the expedition here grew more concerned.

At quarter past twelve, Dyer, the operator, suddenly exclaimed: "There he comes!" It was a message from Waite.

"Heard you calling me on Byrd's receiver. Can't hear you on this receiver. Will return to shack and try again."

First-class news never was broken in a more off-hand way. It was the first anybody knew they had reached Byrd's shack. Somebody said "Thank God!" and there was a wait while the tractor party's operator went down the hatch to the shack and prepared to operate the hand-cranked generator which Admiral Byrd had been using for communication since his gasoline generator, providing power for the main set, failed some time ago.

A SMART DRESS TO START THE FALL SEASON.

By their necklines you will know the first dresses of fall. Two distinct types stand side by side in the new autumn collections and both are interesting. The one that we will discuss first is the plain boat-shaped line that eliminates the collar entirely and follows a stretched-cowl method of procedure in front and is perfectly straight in the back. These are seen in tunic frocks of fine lamé where doliham sleeves give a graceful treatment to the bodice; the other type is the one in which a mysterious witchery of line is arrived at through manipulation of the material.

One of the favorite collars of the season is the one seen on the all-day type of dress shown in the sketch. Its straight lines reflect the treatment that has made Patou's street frocks so popular this season. It is less bulky at the throat than many frocks in the new collections. This point gives its owner the advantage of wearing endless numbers of well-styled scarves, jabots and bouffant bows, for this is to be a year of removable and adjustable neck trimming. By owning several smart changes most of us will make one dress do the work of three.

Normal reigns in the waistline, sleeves and skirt length, the new measurement from the floor being ten inches for daytime dresses of this type.

In encouraging appearance of sat-in-back crepe is proving the all-year around charm of this fabric. The satin side is chiefly used for trimming purposes in this style and reverses, and the dull side for the dress. Crepe weaves give a herringbone surface to some of the newest silks and satins are crinkled after the fashion of Schiaparelli's tree bark fabrics of last season. Green is the leading color for fall and under its lead comes the artichoke and chowchow shades along with the more vital tones of the parakeet and the Killarney colorings.

daughter, Catherine, beside him. As the woman entered the car she lit a cigarette from which she drew short, quick puffs. The child laughed at the swirl of smoke around the woman's head. The car had already swung out over the gorge. In a few minutes the dangling basket had reached the middle of the river, at the lowest point of its sagging cables.

The woman threw the cigarette out of the window, quickly stepped up on her seat and plunged headlong into the canyon. Horrified, McKinley watched her body tumbling over and over as it plunged into the swirling waters of the whirlpool. There was a short splash and the body disappeared.

McKinley and his daughter were the only two of the 14 remaining passengers in the sightseeing basket who saw the leap. He notified young Brooke.

The elderly husband of Mrs. Hyde, reached by telephone at his Bradford home, was unable to comment on his wife's suicide. His son, Edgar, said his step-mother took the family car from the garage Saturday night. Her husband had retired before she left.

This morning on arising he found a note. In it she told him that she was going on a visit to her home in Brookline, Pa., about 90 miles south of Bradford. She promised to return Monday. Mrs. Hyde before her marriage to Mr. Hyde two years ago was Miss Ruth Mosker, of Brookline.

After the suicide, William Groom, taxi driver, Niagara Falls, Ont., told police that he was engaged by a woman answering Mrs. Hyde's description to take her on a sightseeing tour. He drove her around for several hours. She expressed delight over the trip and engaged him for the evening. She said she wanted to drive to the falls when it was illuminated. Groom asked where he could pick her up in his car. The woman hesitated.

"If I'm here, I'll come to the stand," Groom quoted her as replying. "This river has an awful fascination for me."

out of order and the machine ran off the road when the wheels were caught in a rut.

Others hurt were W. C. Camp, 25, of 113 Pearl street; his brother, Carl Camp, 14, of the same address, and J. W. Burrell, 22, of 106 Estoria street. They were treated at Grady hospital, but only Housley was admitted. His left leg was almost cut off just above the ankle. Six children riding the truck were thrown clear when it overturned and were not injured. They had been on a picnic at Panola Shoals. Sheriff Jake Hall, of DeKalb county, is investigating the accident.

The automobiles of Joe Guffin, 18, of Scottdale, and Charley Brown, negro, of Stone Mountain, were virtually demolished Sunday afternoon when they collided near the Stone Mountain road near Scottdale. Guffin and a companion, Harold Reynolds, 19, of Scottdale, were slightly injured and were brought to Grady hospital for treatment. The negro was not hurt. A negro man and his wife were critically injured late Sunday afternoon in an accident at Fair and Fraser streets.

Both Florid Metts, negro, of Wesley avenue, and his wife, Minnie, received fractures of the skull and cuts and bruises when the car in which they were riding with Merritt Wisenbaker, of 178 Mayson avenue, collided with the automobile of Mrs. R. M. White, of 1003 Piedmont road. Police made no cases against the drivers.

Underwood To Sit In Rail Rate Hearing

Judge E. Marvin Underwood, of the federal district court of north Georgia, who has been on vacation in North Carolina, will return to Atlanta in time to sit as a member of a three-judge court Wednesday to hear the application of 44 Georgia railroads for an injunction against the public service commission to prevent a 15 per cent rate cut order being put into effect August 20, it was learned Sunday night.

Judge Underwood, District Judge William L. Grubb, of Birmingham, and either Judge Samuel H. Sibley or Circuit Judge Richard N. Walker of Huntsville, Ala., will compose the tribunal. Jon Dean Stewart, clerk of the federal court here, communicated with Judge Underwood Sunday night and was told the judge would arrive in Atlanta Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. It has not yet been decided whether Judge Sibley or Judge Walker will be assigned to the court.

The 44 railroads in Georgia are seeking to enjoin the 17 per cent rate cut by following the course pursued by 10 Georgia telephone companies which had rate reduction orders issued against them by the service commission. The railroads are in obtaining an injunction against a larger rate slash and now are combating the second cut ordered.

Baby Scalded at Home Succumbs at Hospital

His body scalded last Thursday by boiling coffee, Charles Patterson, 16-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Patterson, of 713 Wylie street, S. E., died Sunday afternoon.

The baby was admitted to Grady hospital Thursday afternoon after he had overturned a pot of hot coffee on himself at his home. The scalding liquid was on a table but the baby pulled the tablecloth until the pot spilled, drenching him. A large area of his body was deeply burned, physicians said.

Funeral arrangements are to be announced by Harry G. Poole.

Legion Raps Perkins On Deportation Policy

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.—(AP) Censure of Secretary of Labor Perkins for "failure to proceed with deportation proceedings" was sought today as the California department of the American Legion began a drive for stricter enforcement of laws against subversive elements.

Resolutions prepared for submission to the annual state convention, now in session here, recommended, in addition to censure of the secretary: "Transfer of the duty of deporting alien radicals from the department of labor to the department of justice, was tightening of the California 'treason' statutes."

OUR NEW TARIFF POLICY.

A clear outline of how the American government will go about creating new tariff policies under the act of congress placing the tariff-making power entirely in the hands of the executive branch of the government, is contained in the recent address of Claudius T. Murchison, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic affairs of the department of commerce.

Heretofore the tariff has been much of a political football, with all rates being set by congress, generally after long weeks of heated debate. When the republicans have been in power, the tariff wall has gone up; when the democrats controlled congress, the trend has been downward. As a result our foreign trade has been handicapped by a damaging condition of uncertainty.

The new reciprocal trade agreements act takes tariff-making out of the hands of congress and thus permits the president, with the aid of the various executive departments, to develop a tariff policy that will not only be free from partisan interference but will be based upon a scientific analysis of economic facts.

The act marks still another important phase in the relation of the American government to foreign trade in that it specifically recognizes that such trade must be a two-way process in order to be fundamentally sound. Director Murchison points out that while "in all foreign-trade transactions at least two countries are involved, the exports of one becoming the imports of the other, we have hitherto proceeded on the bland assumption that the promotion of export trade was a matter entirely independent of all considerations of our import trade."

In order to assure the non-partisan nature of the new tariff policies, they will be subjected to supervision by many government agencies. The president will have the final say, and next to him will be a group known as the executive commercial policy committee, which will be headed by the assistant secretary of state and be made up of representatives of the department of state, commerce, agriculture, the treasury, the AAA, the NRA and the tariff commission. Under the direction of this committee will be the foreign trade committee, which will prepare the text of each trade agreement. A third committee, to be known as the committee for reciprocity information, and also made up of representatives from various departments of the government, will conduct the public hearings on proposed treaties. Before this committee will come the business men, whether exporters or importers, of the United States who wish to present arguments.

To assist these committees there will be other groups whose duty will be to gather and analyze data concerning our relations with specific countries, in order that such data, of a reliable nature, may be instantly available to the treaty-making groups.

Mr. Murchison is firmly of the opinion that—

A scientific quality untainted by political considerations will prevail in this new tariff-making treaty not only upon the type of treaty-making machinery which has been set up, but also rests upon recognition of the fact that intelligent public opinion, regardless of political parties, no longer thinks of the tariff question as being a choice between the so-called high tariff and the so-called low tariff.

The necessities of the times have forced everyone to the conclusion that in the business of tariff-making, each commodity whether it be an export commodity or an import commodity, constitutes a special situation, and each country with which we deal likewise constitutes a special situation.

The world tariff situation has changed radically during the past

Dollfuss Deal.

What had to happen, has happened. Doctor Dollfuss, the chancellor of Austria, broke his oath to the republic last February and assumed dictatorial powers after first breaking the social-democratic party, which represented 60 per cent of the Austrian people. The Austrian social-democrats were not Marxists. They were what we would call progressive democrats. The new districts of Vienna, the schools, parks, airy apartment houses and theaters are an abiding monument to the social-democratic regime which held sway for eight years.

By crushing the social-democrats, Doctor Dollfuss crushed the only political party which could with facility have been the way to a new Austria, who, as the agents of Hitler Germany simply want to annex Austria to the Reich. To the last moment the social-democrats, such as Burgmester Seitz, the Vienna mayor, and Karl Renner, the former chancellor, implored Dollfuss to think twice before putting their party in the ban. He would not listen. A few days before his death he seemed to have realized his error and spoke of allowing the social-democrats more liberty. But then it was too late! The Nazis got him. And the German press was jubilant over the order.

Blow to Mussolini.

Signor Mussolini had assured the great powers some months ago that he would guarantee the independence of Austria and that he would bring pressure to bear in Berlin against the campaign of terror carried on by Germany against Austria. The campaign did not stop. Every night the German radio fulminated menaces and insults at the address of Austria. Every day there were political murders and bomb outrages committed by Nazis in Austria. They finally came the assassination of Herr Dollfuss, Mussolini's personal friend and ally. It meant that Mussolini had failed. That his influence over Hitler is zero.

The collapse of the Hitler "Putsch" means also that Hitler has failed. The attempted annexation of Austria was a desperate effort to make some show of action in the world, to divert the attention of the exasperated German people from their growing economic distress. It was a desperate gamble. It failed. It now becomes clear to the whole of Europe that nothing can be expected by Germany's laboring in the establishment of durable peace in Europe. As Mussolini said after the meeting with Hitler in Vienna: "But Hitler is not a statesman. He is an adventurer. But a dangerous adventurer, who might yet plunge Europe into war, to cover up his own crimes and stupidities."

Under no conditions could Sinclair muster a majority, or even a respectable minority, of the straight-out democratic votes. The chief danger lies in the fact that there are eight other candidates to split the conservative vote, thus making it possible for Sinclair to gain a plurality with only a smattering of democratic ballots, plus the full support of the radical elements in the state, which he is certain to receive.

There is no danger of Sinclair becoming governor, because his nomination would practically assure the election of the republican nominee. Thus the state government is free of any threat of socialist domination—but the situation the democrats would find themselves occupying would have no such encouraging assurance. Not only would the state organization be the target for charges of radicalism, but the national organization would come in for a considerable share of the back-bash of these attacks.

Indications are that the leaders of the national organization are awake to the danger looming in California, and that their full strength will be thrown behind the efforts of the conservative democrats of that state to effectively scotch Sinclair's bold challenge for political preferment.

A North Carolina judge says there is a difference between being "drunk" and "intoxicated." Yes, a gentleman can be a gentleman when intoxicated. A drunk is usually a roughneck.

News Behind the News

BY PAUL MALLON.

WISDOM.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—President Roosevelt's original campaign was for the forgotten man. By now, however, the forgotten man is supposed to have been remembered. In the Green Bay speech, Mr. Roosevelt opened a new campaign for the average man.

That drew a lot of applause from the political strategists in the Roosevelt camp. These strategists probably would applaud whatever Mr. Roosevelt did, but they had a particularly good private excuse for cheering this time.

Nearly everyone masquerading as a politician here is sure that the future of the New Deal at the polls lies in an alliance with western progressives, either covertly or openly.

One of Mr. Roosevelt's reactionary advisers (there are one or two left here), commented on the Green Bay speech privately: "He will have to carry the progressives along until after the November elections." Most impartial observers will add: "And a lot further."

For this reason, if for no other, the wise boys expect the administration to make few compromises with the conservative element in the formation of policies anytime soon.

The bridge between has now been cut away.

FOOD.

The AAA crowd is inwardly fearful that the country may get stirred up about a food shortage. They have decided to stress publicly, in every possible way, their belief there will be plenty of food to go around, despite the drought.

When all the figures are given out, you will find that crops are between 60 per cent and 35 per cent normal. The AAA technicians have figures showing a 50 per cent normal crop, generally, is enough to prevent a food shortage.

There will be shortages in production of certain basic foods, such as wheat and corn, and, to a lesser extent, in meats. Profiteers may use this condition as an excuse to get operating again for the first time since the war. If they do, the AAA has adequate powers to take the situation in hand. It will.

SILVER PROFITS.

Smooth marketeers avoided that 50 per cent tax on silver profits. At least 600,000 ounces (one-third of the domestic stock) were sold after Mr. Morgenthau's list of silver speculators was sent to the senate and before the tax went into effect.

Others avoided the tax by holding on until nationalization was announced. The government had to decree (for legal reasons) that the seizure of silver stocks under nationalization is not in effect a sale. Hence, the profits made by private holders are not taxable.

The prophetic wisdom of silver operators was even more remarkable two days prior to nationalization. They divined that nationalization was coming, and the market went up two cents. But Mr. Morgenthau was no leek. Apparently, they merely heard about the consular invoice announcement 48 hours before nationalization and assumed nationalization would follow.

GUNNERS.

One class quietly gunning for Mr. Roosevelt is the school teachers. They believe the New Deal has not done right by them in the way of relief. Particularly offensive is the requirement that they virtually prove pauperism before they can get aid in the federal educational relief program.

Teachers who have life insurance policies or any articles of value have been denied relief jobs on occasions.

One inner cause of the teachers' failure to attain proper recognition in Washington is the inadequacy of their lobby. And this is the group is split on religious and other grounds.

CREDIT.

The big invisible hand of the government was seen in the government bond market recently by those who have an eye for such business.

The marketeers suspected that the government bought around $75,000,000 in government bonds in the open market, the day after silver nationalization was announced. The purchases supposedly were made out of the stabilization fund. There is plenty more in that fund to take care of even deeper dips.

ENFORCEMENT.

The D. of J. crowd lifted eyebrows when Justin Miller, dean of Duke University law school, was appointed special assistant to the solicitor general. The move is designed to bolster the solicitor general's staff, and it will, but it is not a new thing. That has encouraged the suspicion that the administration will go after code violators, etc., and enforce the New Deal in the courts.

NOTES.

The best 'ism describing Mr. Roosevelt's New Deal is "socialized capitalism." It accurately implies retention of the capitalistic profits system under socialized government.

The score on the subsistence homestead experiments now is supposed to be: Forty projects initiated; 13 or 14 on which work has begun. There are now 43 families housed at Redville, W. Va., which is further along than any of the other projects.

Those in the know at Columbia University believe that, if the New Deal goes over big, Professor Tugwell has an excellent chance of getting President Nicholas Murray Butler's job. Butler's retirement for age is expected before long.

A Sampson Can Pull Down the Temple,

But He Always Perishes With It

By Robert Quillen

The curse of America is price-cutting. It helps nobody and harms everybody.

Any initial success gained by the price-cutter is inevitably followed by failure, for he violates economic law and law always triumphs in the end.

Here is the way it works.

There are 40 gadget makers, with factories all over America. Keen competition has made them remarkably efficient. They have no price agreement, and each is eager to outdo the others.

But their manufacturing costs, which include raw material, labor and overhead, are approximately the same, which means that all of them must maintain a certain selling price in order to make a profit.

So long as they can make a profit, they help to support our civilization. They provide jobs for many people, in the shops and on the road, and they purchase raw material provide jobs for many more. Out of their earnings they pay taxes to support the local and national governments.

Now enters the price-cutter.

He is a new man in the field or one who has failed to get business. Whether he has sold stock or borrowed from banks, the capital of others is tied up in his plant.

Being desperate, or merely stupid and stubborn, he cuts prices to get business. He gets it, of course, but he is cutting his own throat.

He either cheapens his product, which cheats the customer and thus leads to his ruin, or he sells below the cost of production and thus hastens the coming of bankruptcy.

He harms everybody. While he lasts, he takes business from legitimate manufacturers; when he breaks, his ruin leaves his employees without jobs and robs his backers or stockholders of their capital.

It is an economic crime to sell below the cost of production.

And individuals who sell their talent or personal service below the price established by competition and experience are guilty of equal wrong.

They gain nothing by it. Their only reward is contempt for their cheapness. They are "saps." They can't win, for a man who isn't good enough to win by fair means can't make his work more worthy of respect by doing it for nothing.

more likely to occur when surplus fat is being consumed.

The Karell regimen fails in all of these fundamental requirements, and therefore merits obliteration. I offer my apology and regret for having recommended it, but as I say I didn't know any better.

Old Auntie Bintle assured me once, when she and I clashed over a case of either bellyache or appendicitis, that I'd know more when I got a little older. I didn't think it possible at the time, but I must now acknowledge she was right.

Medicine is indeed making great strides these days, and we health authorities must either tag along or else take an uncompromising conservative stand against the newfangled ideas and qualify as old fogies.

Extortion Is Charged

To Floyd County Man

ROME, Ga., Aug. 12.—(P)—A Federal charge of extortion was placed against a man booked as Fred Canada today after police said he attempted to obtain money by mailing threatening letters to a wealthy Floyd County planter.

Policeman T. D. Stevens said the

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Death of Robby Reduces Feud Ranks.

With the death of Uncle Wilbert Robinson, the old manager of the Brooklyn Daffiness boys, the line-up in one of the finest feuds in the sport industry has been reduced to two survivors. One of them is old Judge Steve McKeever, one of the principal owners of the baseball club which raised earnest goodness to a divine art. The other is Colonel Til Huston, a former partner in the ownership of the New York Yankees.

Fine old haters, both, it is a happy circumstance that the survivors are on opposing sides of the quarrel for thus it is assured that the high traditions of the most beautiful hatred which the graying generation of baseball customers were privileged to observe will be maintained to the end. May the feudist with the best set of arteries win but the last man on the field will be lone some there with nobody left in the world really worthy of his animus.

Charlie Ebbets

First to Go.

Charles Ebbets was the first to go. He was neither an athlete nor a sportsman but a frugal business man in the sport industry whose character suggested peanuts rather than home runs. The next man down was Sheriff Bill McGeehan, a sport writer. Not long ago, Joe Vila for many years the editor of the New York Evening Sun, died suddenly, hating Uncle Wilbert Robinson to his last conscious moment.

The sheriff seems to have started it about 10 years back with an essay in the old New York Herald describing the august ceremonies on the opening day of the baseball season in Brooklyn. Charlie Ebbets, the magnate, and a distinguished company of Brooklyn statesmen, marched to the ballpark in centerfield wearing plumed hats.

Dime Dropping

Mr. McGeehan, describing the scene in the paper the next morning, said that when he suddenly dropped the dime which he had been holding in his hand, he had dropped the dime which he had been holding in his hand.

Mr. McGeehan thereupon wrote another column confessing that he had been mistaken in reporting that Charlie Ebbets dropped a dime. It was even worse than that, he said. Mr. Ebbets had dropped 15 cents.

The sheriff (thus starting a feud with the old magnate which grew in beauty until Mr. Ebbets died.

Mr. Ebbets

Undecided.

In the meanwhile, because of the friendship between McGeehan and Wilbert Robinson, Mr. Ebbets began to suspect Uncle Wilbert in a mild way. He did not wish to discharge him because of a feud with a man who had been a friend of his for 30 years.

Mr. Ebbets was an old Oriole which meant that he was all man. He liked to hunt in the fall and drank. He was one of his pleasures, too. Colonel Til Huston, put such reason in with them because McGeehan and Wilbert were his kind.

McKeever Sought

Robby's Removal.

After the death of Charlie Ebbets, old Judge Steve McKeever became a power in the business office of the Daffiness boys and wished to fire Uncle Wilbert. He claimed that even though Wilbert did deliver dividends he was not a good manager. He tried persistently to amass enough votes in the clubhouse to force him out.

Then, one day, for some reason so trivial that all hands soon forgot it in the fury of their hatred Uncle Wilbert had a squabble with Joe Vila. At that point they had been friends for 30 years. Mr. Vila turned his journalistic wrath on him. He started a newspaper campaign to have him fired. Mr. Vila fired him.

McGeehan began to write in defense of Wilbert. For three years Mr. Vila would not permit Mr. Robinson's name to appear in his sport pages. Mr. McGeehan drove out such reason as he had of this silence with loyal threats.

At last, Judge McKeever did manage to bring enough votes to fire Uncle Wilbert.

But there was no truth in the firing. Mr. Vila exulted and Sheriff McGeehan raged.

Atlanta Team

For Old Oriole.

Robinson, McGeehan and Huston frequently gathered for foreign trips. McGeehan and Huston even persuaded the Atlanta Crackers to turn the team over to Wilbert, just so that he would have a ball club to occupy his interest in the summer.

Greater love than that of McGeehan, Wilbert and Colonel Huston no man ever had nor greater hatred either.

The breed of haters is softening up. Only recently Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney were caught in the act of kicking one another's heels and talking about babies.

Four of Quintuplets

Show Loss of Weight

CALLANDER, Ont., Aug. 12.—(P)—Four of the famous Dionne quintuplets, now 76 days old, lost weight today but no one, least of all their physician, Dr. A. R. Dufos, expressed any concern.

Dr. Dufos described a slight decline in weight as a "matter of course."

Cecile was the only baby to gain weight. She advanced 3-3/4 ounces in 24 hours to reach 4 pounds 14-3/4 ounces.

The weights of the children today, and the changes in 24 hours: Xerxes, 6 pounds, 2 ounces loss. Annette, 5 pounds 9-3/4 ounces, 1 ounce loss.

Cecile, 4 pounds 14-3/4 ounces, 1-3/4 ounces gain.

Emilie, 4 pounds 4 ounces, 1-2 ounces gain.

Marie, 4 pounds 1-1/2 ounces, 8-1/2 ounces loss.

Japanese Leaders Opposed To Cut Throat Trade Tactics

Competition Will Not Be Allowed To Affect Friendly Relations, They Say.

(This is the twenty-fourth of a series of articles by Mr. Clarke on the Far East.)

By FRANK W. CLARKE, TOKYO. (By Mail).—Business, financial and governmental leaders of Japan are a unit in declaring that Japan's entry into the chief markets of the world as a new and vigorous competitor for manufactured commodity trade will never be permitted to create a condition that will affect the friendly relations now existing between the governments and peoples of other nations.

It is a known fact that the chancelleries of the world are now more anxious than ever to see the result of the rapid development of Japanese industry than over any possible disagreements on such problems as naval ratios, the recognition of Manchukuo or the so-called Monroe doctrine for the far east. Such debatable questions, it is felt, can be fairly and satisfactorily adjusted through ordinary diplomatic channels—no such confidence is felt with regard to Japan's fast-growing export trade, carrying as it does a threat not only to the production of other countries in every industrial nation in the world but the loss of jobs, or at best diminished wages, to thousands of employees these countries depend upon for their higher production costs, these industries have so far been unable to compete successfully with Japanese goods in the markets of the world, and this competition is growing instead of diminishing. Already numerous small industries in the United States have been forced out of business; British exporters are losing out even in the British dominions, and South American markets are being flooded with Japanese goods in place of the American and European commodities which have formerly predominated in their trade.

A continuation of such a situation, the diplomats of the world fear, will

Fruitful Nature Yields Wealth To Industrious South Georgians

VALDOSTA, Ga., Aug. 12.—The business and agricultural empire, including portions of south Georgia and north Florida, of which Valdosta is the capital, is coming into its own this season despite weather conditions.

In the agricultural empire a fraction less than $1,000,000 worth of tobacco has already been sold in Valdosta, and before the season is over the amount will reach more than $1,250,000. Farmers now turn from tobacco fields and barns to the cotton field white with open bolls of King Cotton's wealth, the price of which is now 14 cents per pound. From this source also will come many thousands of dollars in additional cash. As soon as the harvesting and selling of this crop is completed growers will begin to market peanuts at prices ranging from $55 to $65 the ton, an amount far in excess of that received for several years past.

Already the largest corn crop in history of this section has been made and is being harvested, meaning plenty of food for both live stock and man, with a comfortable surplus to sell during the coming season. When winter comes the farmer will not yet be through with garnering his money, for there are more than 25,000 head of hogs to be sold on the hoof or slaughtered and turned into sides, shoulders, hams, sausage and lard, an additional cash income for the farm.

Along with this comes the syrup making and selling, the combination making the best year this section has experienced in many years. Between the selling price and the expense of the ledger there is a very comfortable margin of clear money for the farmers, because the crops now bringing so much money were produced with a minimum of expense.

Humphries Makes Plea for Youth As Mt. Gilead Celebration Ends

About 2,000 persons assembled Sunday afternoon at Mt. Gilead camp ground on the closing day of the 100th anniversary of the camp, where religious meetings have been held since the ground was turned over to the government by the Creek Indians in pioneer days.

Reminiscent of old times were the camps of the settlers for the week of rejoicing. All the cabins were occupied, and many hundreds came in automobiles for the day's services.

The principal speaker on the day of final celebration was Judge John D. Humphries, chairman of the board of trustees and judge of Fulton superior court, who outlined the history of the camp and told of the founding of the nearby churches, Utoy and Mt. Gilead, among the oldest churches in the state.

Judge Humphries pleaded with his hearers to strive to live up to the traditions handed down to them by the founders of the camp, the forefathers of Fulton county's outstanding families.

The Fulton county jurist exhorted his listeners to a consciousness of God as a "God of law, as well as a God of love," and pleaded for an obedience to the laws of righteousness in daily life in order that universal love and the happiness of mankind may be achieved in the end.

An appeal for the youth of the land was voiced, Judge Humphries calling for the same chance to modern-day youth that was given to the youth of pioneer days.

"Give youth a chance," he begged. "How many times have I looked on those who have strayed from the correct standards of living, and how many times have I known that they did not have a chance in life because they have often never even heard of those right standards. Youth will be given that chance when people learn to live their lives upon the principle of God and his law, as well as God and his love."

Honored guests of the day were two grandsons of the Rev. John M. Smith, who founded Mt. Gilead camp grounds in 1834.

Jeff Smith, now living in Florida, and Jim McGhee, of East Point, recalled the early days in the camp established by their grandfather, Mr. Smith paid tribute to the "old deal" exemplified in the lives of the pioneers of Georgia, declaring that it surpasses any "new deal" of today in bringing men a sense of righteousness and fair living.

Among old settlers who received tribute from the speakers was "Grandma" Suttles, who has attended the Mt. Gilead meetings for 85 years. Regret was expressed that "Uncle" John M. Baker, who holds the record for 89 years' attendance, could not be present on the final day.

The services were presided over by R. L. Russell, presiding elder, and Charlie D. Tillman conducted a varied musical program.

At the morning session the Rev.

JUDGE JOHN D. HUMPHRIES.

Lovic P. Law, Arkansas evangelist, delivered the last day's sermon. A collection quickly netted about $150 to help to cover the expenses of the meeting.

GO-GIRL

By PEGGY GADDIS.

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

"There's a gentleman to see you, Mr. Stanley," he says it's very important," said the hotel operator. "Mr. Andrew Norman, of Stanley Mills."

"Now, what the devil does he want?" snapped Kent, half aloud, and the telephone operator answered, politely. "I haven't the faintest idea, Mr. Stanley—but he says it's important and private."

"Send him up!" said Kent, and put both hands to his aching head.

He had been a fool to go off on a drunken bat, just because he had discovered that Calissa had been twitting him! At the moment, he had been so desperately hurt, so bewildered and incredulous to discover what Johnny Ainsworth had said was the truth about her, that he had availed himself of Johnny's hip flask, and then they had gone somewhere—and after that, his memory of what had happened was a trifle vague.

He heard a tapping at his door, and slid out of bed, thrust his feet into slippers, drew on his robe, and opened the door. Andrew Norman stepped into the room, saying good morning with a brightness that was not entirely convincing.

Kent, watching Norman, noted a slightly wary expression in his eyes—an expression that made him suddenly thoughtful. He masked the slight suspicion, and said, cheerily, "Well, Norman, what's on your mind?"

"I—ah—I hardly know how to tell you, Mr. Stanley—feeling, as I do that I am—well, innocently somewhat the cause of it," said Norman, hesitating.

"Ouch!" said Kent, and put a hand on his dully throbbing head. "Sorry, old man, but I had a hard night and have a devil—a hang-over—I'm afraid you'll have to speak more clearly and simply if you want me to follow you! Have a cigar? I haven't had mine yet—join me?"

He was being very friendly and pleasant in the hope of getting Norman off guard so that he could have some hope of finding out what really was in Norman's mind.

He picked up the telephone and ordered coffee, then sat down across from Norman, lit a cigar, and said pleasantly, "All right, old man, let's have it. Not a strike at the mills, I hope?"

"Oh, no, sir—everything's going on splendidly at the mills," said Norman.

"It's just this, Mr. Stanley. You may, perhaps, remember a girl who worked at the mills—a girl named Calissa Logan?"

Kent's eyes flashed grimly and his mouth set.

"I do, indeed!" he answered, briefly.

"Well, it so happens that the girl was—er—brought to my attention—began Norman cautiously, but Kent cut in:

"Sure, I know—when my mother had some ridiculous idea of taking away from the girl a fraternity ring I had given her. You gave the girl a hundred dollars, and sent her to Atlanta to work for a friend of yours."

"But who should I get in touch with MOST OF THE BOYS ARE... AH—DOC HUMP! HE'S THE BIRD! THEY'VE GOT HIM IN JAIL NOW—BUT HE SHOULD BE ABLE TO GET OUT ON BOND."

OLD-TIME FIRE FIGHTING.

1—When Olden Cities Burned.

Old London has suffered from four great fires. In the year 798, our records say that the city was "nearly destroyed," and for both 982 and 1212, we have the statement that "the greater part of the city was destroyed."

Fighting a fire in 1600. (From an old print.)

The most famous fire in London, if not the worst, took place in 1666 and is known in history as "The Great Fire." It burned for three days, and more than 13,000 houses were destroyed, along with 93 churches and chapels, several hospitals and other large buildings. The loss was placed at 10,750,000 pounds (close to $54,000,000).

Many other records tell of fires in olden times. More than two-thirds of the city of Rome was destroyed in the year 64. Venice had two terrible fires, one in 1106 and the other in 1577.

There was a great deal of water in Venice, and water can be used to put out flames, but the methods of fire fighting were poor. The same is true of London, which had plenty of water in the River Thames.

Hand-pumps of some sort were used in ancient times, and we know that the Romans had fire brigades; but all that they were able to do did not amount to a great deal.

During the Great Fire of London, we read that "fire squirts" were used. Each was held by two men, while a third man pushed a plunger, and others poured water into it. What pitiful fire fighting that was, when the town was burning up!

There really was no way for men to put out the London fire. The best they could do was to stop its spread by pulling down some of the houses in its path. That was done, and it helped to block the spread of the flames.

We find no mention of men pumping water from tanks to put out London's fire of 1666; but we know that such tanks had come into use before that date. An old print of 1600 shows such an "engine" being worked, and bearded firemen pumping and pouring water into it. A friend of mine, on seeing that picture, said that the firemen ought to have shaved before the fire started, to keep from singeing their beards.

Another old print, which dates back almost as far, shows Germans at work on a machine of much the same kind. The pump had a handle about eight feet long, and the tank was placed on a kind of sled.

BOLD THIEVES STEAL FIVE TONS OF SUGAR

Thieves, thought by Acting Chief of Police A. Lamar Poole to be illicit distillers or their agents, early Sunday morning entered the Piggy-Wiggy warehouse at 643 Glenn street, S. W., loaded a Piggy-Wiggy truck with five tons of sugar and drove it off.

The sugar thieves chopped a hole in the roof of the warehouse, loaded the truck, knocked the lock off the door and made their get-away with the sugar without raising an alarm.

The theory that illicit distillers took the sugar was advanced by the veteran police officer because of the difficulties such manufacturers encounter in buying sugar in large quantities without arousing suspicion.

An alleged chicken thief was taken Sunday morning from the chicken coop in the backyard of the home of Luke Thomas, negro, of 74 Richardson street, to a house at 77 Hammock street, on "suspicion."

Police Lieutenant Orville Jones, investigating a report that 10 fine fat chickens had been stolen from Thomas, followed them, saw the tracks and chicken coop, then led up to the house where Lawrence Lewis, 32, negro, was asleep. He told Lieutenant Jones and other patrolmen that a man came to his house and left the chickens at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. The chickens were found in a vacant house next door and Lewis was arrested on "suspicion."

Two young white boys, 9 and 10 years old, were arrested at their homes on Means and Plum streets Sunday morning by Patrolman J. R. Chupp and were detained Sunday night at the juvenile detention home on "suspicion" in connection with the burglarizing Saturday night of a lunchroom at 124 Walton street.

Il Duce and Austrian Silent on Discussions

ROME, Aug. 12.—(AP)—General interest in the question of Austrian security, which is thought to have been discussed by Premier Mussolini and Ernst von Starheimberg, Austrian vice-chancellor at a conference yesterday, continued to excite public interest tonight.

But the public lacked official information in official circles it was said Mussolini had left Rome early today for Rocca Bella Caminate, to continue his vacation.

Since von Starheimberg arose early at his quarters near the Austrian boys' camp at Ostia. With a number of boys he attended mass at the Ostia church. Later he went for a swim in the sea.

A foreign office spokesman repeated the assertion that the prince's visit was of no political significance.

Such statements failed to quiet general curiosity, because the public knows well Il Duce's penchant for settling pressing problems in striking and unusual surroundings.

A. M. E. CHURCH GROUPS MEET HERE WEDNESDAY

The Georgia state tri-conventions of the A. M. E. church will convene Wednesday in annual sessions in Morris Brown College chapel on the Atlanta University campus.

The morning session of the first day will feature the ritualistic observance with the keynote sermon by Bishop W. A. Fountain, the Episcopal head of the A. M. E. denomination in the state.

The membership of eight annual conferences, the Sunday schools, the Missionary contingent, the Allen Churchman, Endeavor League and the junior church leaders and special workers in the various branches of church organizations will attend the sessions here.

Instructors and special leaders will have charge of the group and carry out a program of "Church and Religious Education" in the daily sessions. The pastorate of churches in Atlanta have completed final arrangements for housing and entertaining the crowd to attend these meetings.

The trustees of Morris Brown College, in conjunction with the presiding elders and special educational workers of the state, will detail the educational budget for the support of the institution.

CORN GROWERS SPEED U. S. LOAN REPAYMENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Repayments of corn loans at the rate of more than $1,000,000 per day were reported today by the farm administration.

The total paid back to date, it was said, was $26,369,464.

The loan program began last November. Under it farmers were advanced 45 cents per bushel on grain stored under seal. Borrowers numbering 142,368 received $120,647,500 on 532,000 bushels at the peak of disbursements.

Administration officials said today that the plan resulted in a higher price for all corn and has illustrated what a loan program can do in assisting feed on the farm in years of plenty for the years of shortage.

PHILADELPHIAN HEADS ORDER OF EAGLES

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 12.—(AP)—George F. Douglas, Philadelphia, was elected national president of the fraternal Order of Eagles at the annual convention today. Other officers elected were vice president, Paul Steele, San Antonio, Texas; chaplain, Fred J. Lueper, Hoboken, N. J.; secretary, John S. Parry, San Francisco; treasurer, Joseph H. Dowling, Dayton, Ohio; conductor, Joseph H. Streicher, Buffalo, N. Y.; inside guard, Henry Weber, Everett, Wash.; trustees, Howard N. Ragland, Cincinnati; Way Brock, Kokomo, Ind.; Dr. H. B. McMahon, Oakland, Cal.; Michael Wrenn, Haverhill, Massachusetts.

Trustees will choose the convention city for 1935.

Body of Negro Found On Tracks in DeKalb

The mutilated body of an unidentified negro man was found Sunday afternoon on the Georgia railroad tracks near Scottdale in DeKalb county, nine miles from Atlanta.

W. O. Parker, chief of the DeKalb county police, said he believed the negro was murdered and then thrown on the railroad tracks. The chief said no signs of fresh blood were discovered near the body. The head was split in two and the right leg had been cut off, evidently by a train.

There was nothing in the man's pockets to identify him and residents of the Scottdale neighborhood said they had never seen him before. A coroner's inquest was to be held to determine the cause of death.

Mrs. Margaret Mize, of Clarkston, who was walking along the railroad tracks with her two children Sunday afternoon, discovered the dead negro.

Scattered Showers Forecast for Today

Generally fair weather with scattered thundershowers are in prospect for today, with temperatures about the same as those of Sunday, 69 to 87 degrees, according to the weather bureau.

Only a very light rain was experienced in Atlanta Sunday afternoon, such a small quantity falling that it was impossible to measure. Temperatures which at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon stood at the daily high mark of 87 degrees fell 3 degrees by 2 o'clock, to 75 by 3 o'clock, two more degrees in the next hour and at 7 o'clock was registering 72 degrees, only four degrees above the cool mark of 68 which was established at 1 o'clock in the morning.

According to one theory, the core of the earth consists of a gas, surrounded by a layer of molten rock, in turn surrounded by the hard crust. An expedition this autumn.

The wild panda, an animal now existing nowhere except in the highlands of Tibet, will be sought by an American expedition this autumn.

"Yes, the new low electric rates benefit my home"

More Prize-Winning Letters Tell the Story of More Electric Service at Lower Cost

The letters on this page speak for themselves—we need add nothing.

They are part of a veritable deluge of letters that has been flowing since the Company's announcement of its $350 Prize Contest for the best letters on "How the New Low Electric Rates Benefit My Home." Checks for two dollars each are being mailed to the writers—and all letters remain eligible for consideration in awarding the $100 First Grand Prize and the 17 other Grand Prizes.

H. J. GORDON, Jr., 563 Eighth St., N. W., Atlanta: "When the rate reduction was first announced... we figured that the large consumers would be the only ones to receive any benefit and the small residential consumers, such as ourselves, wouldn't feel the reduction at all. But we were greatly mistaken—because our first bill showed a decrease of nearly 33 1/3 per cent. My mother is a dressmaker and for a long time she had wanted an electric sewing machine. Now, with the new rates, she could have one. She bought the machine and, strange to say, it didn't make much difference in the bill... With the hot weather coming on, we purchased an electric fan... How much did these two added conveniences cost us? Absolutely nothing! FREE ELECTRICITY will pay for them, and FREE ELECTRICITY will keep them going, thanks to the new rates."

MRS. R. L. CHAPMAN, 3206 Oakdale Road, Hapeville: "I have an electric stove in my kitchen, also a wood range... Last month I cooked on the electric stove more than usual, burned lights until late at night and did my ironing. Believe it or not, my bill was lower than in many months. If the low rates continue, I shall be glad to move out my old wood stove and use my electric range altogether."

MRS. ELISE DOUGHTY DE CUYAS, 1110 Troupe St., Augusta: "... and at last I feel that I can afford to buy something I have wanted—namely, a refrigerator and all that means—everything fresh, buying cheaper in larger quantities... lovely home-made ice cream... no trouble."

JOHN R. SPENCE, Clem: "Since I have been using electricity at your reduced rates, last month using it for lighting my home, operating a large GE refrigerator, operating a nine-tube radio, electric iron—the whole cost was only $3.63. This shows a monthly saving of $10.17 (under previous monthly expenses). This is not all. There is a great saving in perishable foods and the luxury of having ice cream at little cost of money or labor."

EVERY EXTRA PENNY

MRS. EMORY PAGE, Jr., Hapeville: "For seven months, my husband, little boy and myself have lived in one large room. We are now trying to build two more rooms. Naturally, we have to save every extra penny but still we like to have a few comforts. My husband works at night and my greatest problem is how to cook during this hot weather, and keep the room cool enough for him to sleep. Now it is no problem at all since the new low rates have been in effect. I can now use my electric plate, electric percolator, and with the electric fan going the room is very comfortable. By next summer, we hope to have room for an electric refrigerator."

MRS. BOB BARGERON, Waynesboro: "Six years ago, I purchased the first Electric Westinghouse Automatic Range sold in Waynesboro. I am still using this same stove. Two years ago, I used for 14 days a G. E. refrigerator, but electricity at that time was so high we did not purchase then. A few days ago we found we had enough kilowatt hours on the new low rates to warrant our purchasing a Kelvinator TV-4 model refrigerator. The joy in this new purchase is beyond words, for 'saving food is saving money'."

MRS. V. L. YATES, Pelham: "When the new rates and free kilowatt hours were explained to us, my first thought was to buy some of those beautiful parchment shades in the Georgia Power Company's windows and place them everywhere I might possibly want to read. Now I find that my new lamps not only give relief to overworked eyes, but add beauty to my rooms. The soft glow which they cast gives such a cozy effect. The whole family is enjoying and benefiting by this extra light. We no longer have to crowd and scramble for the best reading place. Neither do I hear so much about headaches."

MRS. V. T. GADDY, 1812 New York Ave., Atlanta: "As the mother of two small children, you can well imagine the hours I spent in laundry work, but thanks to the new rate reduction, I now have the convenience of an electric washing machine without any added expense for operating it... Of course this gives me more hours of leisure to spend with my children."

MRS. M. N. BAKER, Avondale Estates: "Have been cooking with electricity for two years and was always afraid to cook like I really wanted to, but since the new low electric rates have been in force, I cook and use my electric appliances all I want to... Have also been able to purchase an electric refrigerator and hope soon to have a washing machine."

MRS. EULA HOWE, 291 Alaska Ave., Atlanta: "Turn off the lights to save electricity has been the unwritten law in my family since I can remember... But this formidable command which haunted our nights like a silent, sinister spectre has slunk away in well-deserved defeat since the new low electric rates have become effective."

DR. MATHER M. McCORD, Rome: "We now have fans in every room, many lights, radio, electric clock, General Electric refrigerator, electric iron, electric vacuum cleaner, electric toaster, electric fruit juice squeezer—and the bill is no higher than when we did not have all these things. These free kilowatt hours belong to us and we are going to get additional electric equipment until we reach the limit of our allowance... adding 100 per cent to the comfort, appearance, value and convenience of our home without costing one extra dime for current."

WHEN EGGS ARE HIGH—BINGO!

J. D. MANGHAM, 372 3rd Ave., W. H. Macon: "Before the new rates went into effect, I considered seriously having my lights discontinued. Not that I wanted to, but being a brickmason and work as it is, of necessity I must make every penny count. But for service, pleasure and comfort at low cost, not even a V-8 can equal electricity. My greatest pleasure really saves me most. I have a small flock of chickens and sure enjoy turning on lights at night for an hour or so just to sit and watch the chicks chug bugs and insects. Lights furnish one of the most important foods for chicks—meat. For meat is necessary for making a healthy hen. Also in winter, when eggs are high—bingo! on with the lights and get your production at least one-third. Make a profit and get pleasure from pests. Let the chicks feed on them. The sickness and food destroyed by roaches, mosquitoes, etc., will more than pay for the cost of electricity. For value received, nothing beats electricity. However, home loans and life insurance are close seconds."

MRS. H. C. HERRINGTON, 108 McGee St., Macon: "Certainly, this summer I could not have carried on without a fan. Now it runs day and night and the extra saving on my bill has enabled me to purchase another electrical appliance and feel that eventually with lowered rates I may add a washing machine. Of course I realize there are much larger consumers but would like you to know what it means to the family living on small income."

MRS. BESSIE LESTER, 315 Smith St., Dublin: "The new low rates have made our home brighter, work lighter, increased our pleasure, added to our comfort and helped to keep our budget balanced."

MRS. W. C. WHITTLE, 319 Telfair St., Augusta: "Being a woman of very modest circumstances and the mother of four small children, I feel I have been extremely benefited by your new electric rates... My electric fan supplies a cool refreshing breeze... In my kitchen I keep crisp and fresh while preparing meals on my electric range... I was inclined to cramp myself for fear of using more current than I could afford. Now it's a comfort to think, 'I really should use my Free Electricity! Each month I receive my bill with a thrill, realizing just how much I have gotten for the mere pittance charged me.'"

MRS. S. J. TAYLOR, Davisboro: "The first thing we did was to install an electric pump... then we put in a G. E. refrigerator... we run three radios and two electric fans... we have good lights... All this costs about what we paid last year for lights and radio."

MRS. R. V. GUYTON, 1800 West View Drive, S. W., Atlanta: "With these savings and the new low electric rates, I am able to save and buy an electric stove, then the electric dish-washing machine, until my kitchen is all electric just as the modern office."

MRS. J. W. HUBBARD, 188 Norwood Ave., N. E., Atlanta: "The reduced electric rates are now giving the poor many conveniences that once only the rich enjoyed... Now I am enjoying an electric stove and also have a new radio and find my bill very reasonable... Also have an electric iron and hope to enjoy electric refrigeration soon."

MRS. ALMA KEE, 338 McAfee St., Atlanta: "The new rates have certainly been a blessing to families like us with a small income."

MRS. J. L. GATLIN, 332 Hopkins St., S. W., Atlanta: "You said you wanted facts. Well, here they are—two of my light bills. One is for the period of from July 17 to August 15, 1933, under the old rate. My consumption for that month was 116 kilowatt hours at a net cost of $5.61. The other bill is for March 15 to April 16, 1934, under the new low rates. My consumption for this month was 122 kilowatt hours at a net cost of $4.63... I used my electrical appliances more often and for longer periods and yet saved 98 cents in one month."

MRS. THOMAS O. CHRISTIAN, Oglethorpe Place, Route 2, Macon: "My electric range enables me to place dinner in the oven, set the alarm to the time for cooking to begin, then forget it... The more electricity I use, the less I pay for it. Each month I have a no-kick electric bill."

BIG SAVING

MRS. JOE VASON, 124 Cherokee Ave., Athens: "On June 1st we bought an electric range and vacuum cleaner. Also new bulbs throughout the house. The new low rates had been explained to us, but it seemed too good to be true, and we were not fully convinced until our next bill came. Our former fuel bill, for cooking only, was never under $6.00. Now our entire bill is only $1.78, which includes: cooking, lights, cleaning, ironing, toaster, radio and fan. With this big saving we are planning to buy an electric refrigerator."

MRS. R. L. HUDSON, Cedarhurst: "I could not do without my range, refrigerator, vacuum cleaner, sewing machine, better lights, better food and better health. We have saved at least $4.00 on our electrical equipment per month..."

MRS. R. H. FLETCHER, Carrollton: "From living room to pantry, electrical appliances have 'gone back to work' and each day sees them doing their chores quickly, efficiently and economically... The new electric rates have made me KNOW the value of electricity in the home."

MRS. J. E. HOWELL, 307 Third St., Ocala: "After thirty years of housekeeping without the aid of electric equipment, I thoroughly appreciate the privilege of using electricity as an aid to good housekeeping... The new low rates are a convincing argument for adding other equipment for comfort and convenience."

Southern Garment Company Announces Fall Showing of New Styles

LATEST CREATIONS IN READY-TO-WEAR
TO BE EXHIBITED

Dealers in Atlanta Territory Invited To Attend Showings of Local Firm Starting Today.

The newest styles in coats, suits and dresses will be placed on display today for the formal fall showings at the Southern Garment Company, Inc., 110-112-114 Mitchell street.

BEN H. BACH, president and general manager of the company, announces that hundreds of creations for the junior miss and woman, as well as the super styles, are available for immediate delivery.

Some of the fabrics to be shown by the Southern Garment Company, according to Mr. Bach, are satin, trav-

Enviably 10-Year Record Established By Harry Sommers, Inc., Auto Dealers

An enviable ten-year record of service and expansion is that of Harry Sommers, Inc., Chrysler and Plymouth automobile dealers, at 446 Spring street, N. W.

Celebrating its tenth anniversary recently, Harry Sommers, Inc. installed newly-developed equipment, which el crepe, sheers, acetate and novelty crepes. "In costs this year," says Mr. Bach, "the trend is toward the sport and untrimmed. We also have the latest designed fur-trimmed coats."

"The suits this season are complete makes possible an absolute "one-stop" service and places its plants as one of the best equipped in the south-east.

The new equipment includes the motor analyzer, which speedily ascertains deficiencies, a battery and starter motor tester, a generator and starter motor, a distributor synchronizing outfit, and equipment for armature repairs. Thus, quick and efficient service is assured on any repair job.

The new air-flow designed Chrysler which Harry Sommers, Inc., has been selling this year is what engineers produced to obtain "a floating ride."

"There is no use trying to measure its superiority over the conventional ride," says Joel Daves, vice president and general manager of Harry Sommers, Inc. "It is as absolutely new in its effects as it is original in its design."

"I am perfectly sincere in saying that the floating ride is not the former type of ride greatly refined and improved. I do not mean that the evils that we long have been conscious of have merely been reduced to a minimum. I mean that they have been eliminated and that something new in locomotion actually has been created, something that for want of a better name might be called flying on wheels—it is an improvement on flying in one respect, because the surface of a good highway when taken in an Airflow Chrysler is a good deal smoother than the air generally encountered in flying. There are no air pockets on concrete."

No detail of Chrysler services, repair or operation is too large or too small for attention in the Harry Sommers, Inc., service department.

Recently installed equipment provides precision alignment of wheels, which in many instances, by the correction of errors of fractional degrees, reduce tire wear and lessen the chances of serious accident.

The service department also includes complete equipment for body work on all Chrysler-made cars, a paint shop, glass replacement facilities, a complete brake testing and adjustment outfit, a high-grade battery service, a grease rack and washing and polishing service.

A complete parts department for all Chrysler-made cars is operated in conjunction with the service department.

MARKED INCREASE IN TRADE IS SHOWN BY ELLIS ROOFING

Company Offers Efficient Service in Repairing Leaks Caused by Long Hot Spell.

Ellis Roofing Company reports a substantial increase in its roofing business, and attributes this, in part, to the fact that the recent unusually hot weather has dried out a great many old roofs and the sudden rains have caused leaks to appear.

Another reason for the increased business is the fact that more people are finding out the value of the Dutchlok and Tite-on shingles properly applied by this company, and that the salesmen of the Ellis Roofing Company are experienced in this work and are capable of advising the owner which of the above shingles is best suited for the owner's home and not leaving it to the owner, who usually is inexperienced in roofing matters, to choose the proper roof.

Mr. Ellis states that his assistants, W. E. Sims, A. A. Watson, F. H. Falkenburg and S. P. Lee, who have had years of training in the roofing and building industries, are capable of great service to the home owner.

Mr. Ellis also says his company has executed a number of contracts for owners who have refinanced their homes through the Home Owners' Loan Corporation and that as soon as the new housing act program goes into operation they will be in position to render the same high-type service as on private contracts.

Mr. Ellis and his assistants feel that they are fortunate in having access to the complete line of roofing materials manufactured by the Tuberoil Company. This line includes, in addition to the Dutchlok and Tite-on shingles mentioned above, also the square-tab strip shingles, roll roofing, asbestos shingles and siding, and all types of built-up roofs. The Tuberoil Company manufactures the Eternit asbestos shingles, that have been on the market for more than 50 years. The Eternit Tapered American shingles are the only fully laminated tapered asbestos cement shingles on the market.

By laminating, or building up in layers, the Tuberoil Eternit asbestos shingles are greatly strengthened. The Eternit Dutchlap and Hexagonal shingles are built up with 21 laminations during their process of manufacture, which insures maximum strength in asbestos shingles.

Ellis Roofing Company are approved roofers for the Tuberoil Company's built-up bonded roofs for commercial buildings in this territory, and this line comprises tar and gravel roofs, asphalt and gravel roofs, and smooth-surfaced asphalt asbestos roofs. These roofs are protected by bonds of 10, 15 or 20 years, depending on the number of plies of felts used.

DAILY SHORT STORY
BUSINESS BEGINS

Barney Fleck Was an Office Boy and He Tried to Imitate the Ways of His Boss, Who Seemed to Ignore Him.

By LAURA B. McKIMMIE.

Exactly 15 minutes to 9 Barney Fleck opened the door to Collins, Inc. He pressed the electric switch on the wall just inside the door, leaned swiftly sideways and scooped up a bundle of mail from the soft carpet.

On the glass panel of the door in front of which Barney had stopped was the word "President," and he passed before it the symbol of Mr. Collins' overwhelming superiority as a man pauses before insurmountable obstacles.

Tossing the bundle of mail to a chair he went over to Miss Hildebrandt's desk and touched it gently. A notebook lay in a wire basket on the corner of the desk, a rubber band slipped around the used pages, separating them, like the past, from the unfilled portion. A pencil was thrust along the smooth surface of the pencil. Then suddenly, sheepishly, he bent over and kissed it.

He turned back to his own desk, which stood diffidently just inside the door. Then he went to the boss' desk and from a lower drawer—a catch-all for a man's office paraphernalia—he fished a length of cheesecloth, ran the glass back and forth across the desk, lifting off of its path with his free hand a picture of a woman and two children, all three smiling happily at something beyond the silver frame; a walnut letter tray; and a block of onyx pierced by two black-and-gold pens.

He had no more than replaced the cloth in the drawer when the door opened and his sensitive body seemed to quiver, to sway toward the young woman who had just hurried in.

"Oh, hello there, Barney," she said, smiling at him. "What's up?"

She turned and looked not at him, humbly standing there in his new hat, but at the boss' desk. It did not

"Hadn't you better start on the mail?" she said.

He knew she was wishing he would go on about his business so that she might perform this rite alone. But he stood his ground like a stubborn child who refuses to be pushed aside.

She loosened the blotter from the four brown clasps and examined the other side. The ink had soaked through. Taking a fresh square from the drawer, where Barney had put the dust cloth, she fitted it into the clasps.

"I put that blotter on just yesterday," she argued.

No more than the blotter was spotted. She flicked an atom of lint from the desk's perfection. Barney went to his own desk.

Just then Mr. Collins entered. He walked with the patled, slowly rhythmic grace that so many large men have. He carried a flat package in his hand and his hat was pushed negligently to the back of his head. Examining him covertly, Barney was conscious of a dull sense of hopelessness.

Miss Hildebrandt, across her typewriter, smiled and welcomed him. "You've come home—extraordinarily nice," little smile and said "Good morning." The boy's greeting followed reluctantly, as if for two pins he wouldn't say "Good morning," at all.

Mr. Collins did not speak; he barely nodded, just bent his head an instant. With a careless movement that Barney knew he could never achieve he tossed his hat to the window sill and sat down at his desk. He pushed aside, quite heedlessly, the things that were there; opened the package he had brought with him and drew out a photograph. It was a picture of a grave, level-browed woman and a boy and girl intent upon books. He examined them carefully, feature by feature, unable seemingly to decide which he liked the better—the serious or the smiling woman. The whole world might have depended upon his choice.

The boy's lips twisted into a little grin of satisfaction and his glance fled across the office to Miss Hildebrandt, his mind saying, "That ought to hold you."

She was not looking at Mr. Collins. She was looking instead at her typewriter, looking intently as if her drowsy eyes might never lift. And the curve of her mouth was restrained, more restrained than it was before.

Tomorrow, "Rich Wife," by Norma H. Labell, tells of a young scientist who married a wealthy girl despite the predictions of his friends. He insisted upon working while she passed her days with hobbies. But the end of it was her hobby that saved their romance. (Copyright, 1934, for The Constitution.)

SEARCHER'S DREAM LEADS TO RESCUE OF 3-YEAR-OLD GIRL

WINNIPEG, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Most of the searchers who set out last week to find missing three-year-old Florence Spence gave up hope when bear tracks were found in the vicinity of the child's mysterious disappearance.

But not Mr. Blair, a diamond drill settler of the central Manitoba mines, a close friend of Tom Spence, Indian trapper and father of the missing three-year-old girl, Florence, was safe at home today.

Blair had a dream. He said the dream directed him to an isolated spot in the bush three miles from the boy's home. He told searchers about it, and they scouted at him, but he quit work and started out.

In less than an hour he was on his way back with Florence in his arms. He took her to Dr. W. J. Falconer, who said her survival in the forest for five days, without food, was a miracle—not to mention the presence of bears in the region.

Florence's condition was weak but the doctor said she will recover completely in a few days.

Follow the Sayingame

$1,800 in Cash Prizes!

By THE SAYINGAME EDITOR.

The gay Sayingame, which has easily maintained its popularity winning stride, is rounding into its concluding phase. There's just one more week to go—one more week and picture No. 80 will be seen in these columns. Picture No. 80 will signalize the end of the series. Then the judges will roll up their sleeves and busy themselves with determining the 35 contestants who are to share $1,800 in cash prizes.

Lots of contestants who have made eleventh-hour decisions to submit extra solutions on extra sets are in need of duplicate pictures. These duplicates are being kept in stock by The Constitution circulation department. An ample number of copies of "Sayings of the Wise," the official contest book, also remains. "Sayings of the Wise" has the 80 most appropriate solutions for the 80 pictures. It is 50 cents a copy—54 cents when ordered by mail.

Extra pictures for replacing those that have been lost or soiled, or for making up additional sets, are kept on hand in the circulation department. Single copies are 5 cents apiece, the price of the individual issues of the Constitution in which they were published. Any eight pictures may be had for 30 cents, or 40 pictures (half the series) for $1.25. Mail orders should include 3 cents extra for postage.

The grand dragons and great titans, the latter being in charge of subdivisions of the realm, will meet in joint session today to discuss preliminary plans for the nation-wide re-enlistment campaign to be launched immediately, it was said.

The election of Dr. Evans was unanimous, according to those attending the session. The session of the grand dragons, held every two years, will take place in a theater here.

Klan members from every part of the country were gathered Sunday for the grand dragons' session, which is expected to hear the imperial leaders lay down a program to be put into effect by every unit in the nation.

"The display of loyalty and enthusiasm at the meeting today was inspiring," said Mr. Dunning Sunday.

The great army of the grand dragons will be recruited to full strength in record time through a nation-wide organization ready to function," Dr. Evans was quoted as having said to the state leaders.

The plan's program of action will be announced Wednesday by Mr. Dunning, said the national leader.

Little Inflation Seen In New Silver Policy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Admiral Joseph P. Coad, a holiday from public discussions of their silver policies today, standing by their last reiteration of the belief that the plan would not cause appreciable inflation.

At the government printing office Sunday meant no time off for the men who are printing the $80,000,000 in new currency. They were ahead of schedule but still far behind the demand.

As fast as the currency is being turned out, officials said, it is being paid on current running expenses by the treasury. Small articles also are being forwarded to federal reserve banks with the request that they try for its immediate distribution.

There was no indication of any change in the announced policy of limiting the amount of currency issued on newly purchased silver to the price paid for the metal. Only 62,000,000 ounces in the treasury are being purchased at $1.20 an ounce for currency purposes.

$1,800 in Cash Prizes!

By THE SAYINGAME EDITOR.

The gay Sayingame, which has easily maintained its popularity winning stride, is rounding into its concluding phase. There's just one more week to go—one more week and picture No. 80 will be seen in these columns. Picture No. 80 will signalize the end of the series. Then the judges will roll up their sleeves and busy themselves with determining the 35 contestants who are to share $1,800 in cash prizes.

Lots of contestants who have made eleventh-hour decisions to submit extra solutions on extra sets are in need of duplicate pictures. These duplicates are being kept in stock by The Constitution circulation department. An ample number of copies of "Sayings of the Wise," the official contest book, also remains. "Sayings of the Wise" has the 80 most appropriate solutions for the 80 pictures. It is 50 cents a copy—54 cents when ordered by mail.

Extra pictures for replacing those that have been lost or soiled, or for making up additional sets, are kept on hand in the circulation department. Single copies are 5 cents apiece, the price of the individual issues of the Constitution in which they were published. Any eight pictures may be had for 30 cents, or 40 pictures (half the series) for $1.25. Mail orders should include 3 cents extra for postage.

The grand dragons and great titans, the latter being in charge of subdivisions of the realm, will meet in joint session today to discuss preliminary plans for the nation-wide re-enlistment campaign to be launched immediately, it was said.

The election of Dr. Evans was unanimous, according to those attending the session. The session of the grand dragons, held every two years, will take place in a theater here.

Klan members from every part of the country were gathered Sunday for the grand dragons' session, which is expected to hear the imperial leaders lay down a program to be put into effect by every unit in the nation.

"The display of loyalty and enthusiasm at the meeting today was inspiring," said Mr. Dunning Sunday.
